

AGING WITH THESE SHOWBIZ LEGENDS?

Only in GLOBE!

Suzanne Somers' strange TROUT POUT

THE 63-year-old Three's Company star-turned-alternative health guru appears to have chosen more traditional means to enhance her lips - but she may have overdone it!

"Suzanne's lips look like a pair of ballpark franks," says plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn, a regular guest on the Rachael Ray Show. "It appears that she's had them plumped up, likely with fat taken from her thighs or stomach."

New York plastic surgeon Dr. Steven Pearlman adds, "Her lips do appear large for a woman of her age. This can be achieved with filler."

"But at least the lower lip is larger than the upper, which is aesthetically correct."

TUCKER!

suspension that would create a sling under her neck for support."

At the very least, notes Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Dr. Richard Fleming, Tucker, 51, could use some liposuction.

"If her schedule doesn't allow time for a full face-lift," he says, "she can have liposuction under the neck to reduce the fat and then a limited face-lift to remove the saggy skin."

Pat Boone, 76, needs skin doc

CLEAN living hasn't seemed to slow the aging process of the 76-year-old singer, an outspoken born-again Christian.

Dermatologist Dr. Kenneth Beer says Boone's spotty, wrinkled skin needs to be born again, too! "He has significant sun damage as evidenced by the blotchy brown and red spots," notes the Palm Beach, Fla.-based doc who owns ScientificSkin.com. "Some of these spots need to be treated with liquid nitrogen or photodynamic therapy."

"There are also many areas of his face that have creases from loss of facial volume, so he would benefit from filler injections."

"If I were treating him, I'd resurface his skin with laser or intense pulsed light treatments and keep him buffed up with some salicylic acid peels."

"He'd look decades younger!"

